Federal, state and local governments continue to provide tax credits and incentive programs to businesses to help promote investment, innovation and employment opportunities. Understanding whether your business is a candidate for such programs can be confusing—quantifying the benefits, how to apply and document these incentives are just some of the challenges associated with these special programs. Since the inception of the firm, we have helped businesses across numerous industry sectors access programs that have resulted in an immediate source of cash through current tax savings and reductions in future federal and state tax liabilities. HCVT has one of the largest tax credit and incentives team in Southern California, and we work hard to help ensure that your business takes advantage of programs that move your business forward.
