Professional service firms, such as law firms, consulting firms, talent agencies, insurance brokers, engineering, and architectural firms, face an increasingly competitive and complex business environment. Firms need to address significant issues, including compliance with professional standards and government regulations, risks associated with domestic and global expansion, talent acquisition and retention, succession planning, innovation, and the need to consider changes in the current business model to adapt to these challenges.

Professional service firms also face many tax and accounting challenges. These include taxation by multiple state jurisdictions, increased scrutiny and reporting related to international tax matters, and the responsibility to accurately and timely report financial and income tax-related information to partners and stakeholders.

Constant changes in tax regulations and accounting standards require professional service firms to stay informed in a timely manner and understand the related impact on the firm and its stakeholders. We understand these challenges. We work with you to help you stay informed and to navigate tax and accounting issues. Our specialized practice focuses on your needs and helps you achieve your goals.
